'Promoting Alternatives to Imprisonment for Women in Conflict with the Law'

As part of the Global Webinar Series on Gender-Responsive Criminal Justice and Prison Reform

Thursday, 4th June
8am New York
2pm Vienna
7pm Bangkok

The harmful impact of imprisonment on women, their families and communities has been widely documented.

While the number of women in prison has increased dramatically, many of them do not pose a risk to society. As the COVID-19 crisis casts the spotlight on prison overcrowding and the need for alternatives, gender-responsive approaches are crucial. This webinar brings together prison and criminal justice practitioners, UN personnel, civil society and academia to discuss experiences and share promising practices.
